Course Description:

This course provides a contemporary overview of the Old Testament Canon of Sacred Scripture from a Roman Catholic perspective. A special emphasis will be directed to understanding and utilizing the various aides available to facilitate an accurate interpretation of Scripture. The student will be introduced to the literature, history, and messages of the Old Testament. The student will discover the history of the people of Israel and a picture of Israel's relationship with God. Yet, the Old Testament is far more than the story of ancient Israel. The material revealed in its pages functions as the theological and moral foundation for three of the world's major religious traditions: Judaism, Christianity and Islam. As such, it has shaped the history of western civilization and continues to influence the world today. Thus, as we study the ancient text we will also consider its impact on ourselves and on people of other cultures today.

Learning Outcomes:

The student will become familiar with the contents of the Old Testament. S/he will learn about the various types of literature therein and will become knowledgeable of the history and theology of ancient Israel. The student will discover the various "themes" found within the OT canon of Scripture. The student will develop effective skills in reading, thinking and listening by exploring (individually) and discussing (cooperatively) major themes and messages of the OT within its historical and cultural context. The student will come to understand the significance of the OT in shaping today's societies – religiously, historically, economically, politically and socially. S/he will come to realize the relevance of these ancient texts in the contemporary landscape.

Grading Policy:

This is a pass/fail course, but recognition will be given to students who display an exemplary level of learning excellence.

Course Requirements:

1. Attendance and active participation each week is of primary importance to the successful completion of this course. Attendance and active participation includes responding to other students' insights during class as well as voicing one's own theological insights based on the readings and discussions.
2. Completion of assigned readings and assignments each week.
3. Submission of required written papers, as noted in the class assignment schedule.
4. Participation is required in class presentations that will be assigned at the beginning of the semester.
5. Successful completion of all "Pop" Quizzes.
6. Successful completion of Final Exam.

Attendance Policy:

Students are expected to be “present” for all classes. “Presence” is understood as physical attendance in class and participation in appropriate discussions. Students must contact the instructor if they plan on being absent from class. “Make-up” work will be assigned if deemed necessary by the instructor.

Students with Learning Disabilities:

If a student is in need of an accommodation based on the impact of their disability, please contact the instructor to schedule an appointment to discuss the course format, anticipate your needs and explore potential accommodations. I rely on the Office for Students with Disabilities for assistance in verifying the need for accommodations and developing accommodation strategies. If you have not previously registered with the Office for Students with Disabilities, I encourage you to do so. Just a reminder, requests for accommodations are not retroactive.

Academic Dishonesty Policy:*Definitions

Academic dishonesty is unethical behavior which in any way violates the standards of scholarly conduct. It includes such behaviors as cheating on assignments or examinations, plagiarizing, submitting the same or essentially the same papers for more than one course without the consent of all instructors concerned, misappropriating library materials, or the destroying of or tampering with computer files. Also included in academic dishonesty is knowingly or intentionally helping another student violate any part of this policy.

Plagiarism is the failure to give credit for the use of material from outside sources. It includes, but is not limited to, verbatim use of a quote without quotation marks and adequate documentation, submission of a paper prepared by another person as one’s own work, using the ideas, facts, words, or data of someone else and claiming them as your own, or not documenting ideas, facts, words, or data gathered during research.
